Israel Warns On Intrusions By Soviet Jets

TEL AVIV. Nov. 8 (UPI).-Israel made it clear today it is not prepared to tolerate any more Soviet provocations in the form intrusions into its airspace by MiG-23s,

"Let me make one thing very, very clear . . . These were Russian planes with Russian pilots," a military source said of Saturday's first overflight of the Israel:-cccupied Sinal Peninsula by a pair of the Soviet-built fighter-

An Israeli broadcasting commentator described the overflight as part of an Egyptian-Soviet campaign to create Middle East tension and get Washington to pressure Israel to make peace

Pakistan Cut Off By U.S. From All Arms Shipments

By Fred Farris

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (IHT: .- The United States today stopped all shipments of arms to Pakistan, the State Department announced. By mutual agreement with the Karachi government, all licenses for exports of remaining military aid shipments were canceled as of this morning, State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said. All U.S. export licenses had been suspended as of March 25 when the East Pakistan civil war broke out and none has been issued since then. But shipments contracted for prior to that date had continued and military soare parts worth $160,000 will be sent to Pakistan under that agreement, Mr. Bray told newsmen.

The spare parts, he said, had been sent to New York for shipment to Pakistan but the East Coast dock strike has delayed

The United States decided about a week or 10 days ago to cancel remaining shipments, valued at $3.6 million, after what Mr. Bray called extensive consultations with the government of President Mohammed Yahya

Of the $3.6 million in arms canceled, some $2.1 million was in the supply pipeline already with an additional $1.5 million comprising new materiel.

The State Department spokesman said India was advised of the decision before Prime Minister Indira Gandni arrived in Washington last Thursday.

Mr. Bray would not link the suspension of further Pakistan arms aid to the present critical situation between India and Pak-istan. He said, "This is something that has been in the works with Pakistan for some time . . . I wouldn't put it in the context" of a peacemaking attempt.

However, revocation of the remaining licenses to ship arms to Pakistan was seen here as removing a source of irritation in Mr. Bray said the reason the arms aid was cut off at this time is merely that "we agreed with the government of Pakistan there would be no useful purpose served by continuing shipments." The United States did not inform India of the decision "because of any representation" from Prime Minister Gandhi's government but because of India's "interest in the matter." He declined to speculate on alternative sources for arms available to Pakistan and refused comment on the weekend Pakistani mission to Peking.

India Raises Arms Orders From Russia

Also Asks Speedup Of Earlier Orders

By Sydney H. Schanberg NEW DELHI, Nov. 8 (NYT).-India has increased its orders of arms from the Soviet Union in the last few weeks and has also asked that the delivery of earlier arms orders be speeded up.

The new Soviet arms commitment to India—some of the goods have already arrived—has taken place since Pakistan began 2 troop buildup on the western border with India early last

"Since the buildup," said one high Indian official, "we have been looking into our arms inventories and, wherever we found deficiencies, we have sought to remedy them quickly."

Indian officials say they are getting the arms and spare parts from many countries, but they acknowledge that most of the military equipment is coming from the Russians, who have ·been India's biggest arms supplier for several years.

India-whose military strength is considered superior to Pakistan's, has a large armoments industry of its own, producing small arms, ammunition, tanks, vehicles and other equipment. The Russians have supplied New Delbi with heavier and more sophisticated weaponry, such as MiG fighters, surface-to-air missiles and heavy tanks.

High officials acknowledge that a few Soviet transport planes carrying arms have arrived in India in the last week, and that some ships may be sailing to India with arms shipments.

But they deny that these shipments are "massive"—as some news reports have characterized them. The officials also deny that the arms include any new missiles or planes or that Russian instructors have accompanied them-as mentioned in the news reports.

The new purchases and the delivery speedups, the Indians say, were an outgrowth of the recent visits of the Soviet deputy foreign minister, Nikolai P. Firyphin, and the Soviet air chief. Marshal P.S. Koutakhov, both of whom discussed India's defense needs with top officials here.

KIGOMA, Nov. 9, 1971 (IHT).—After 13 hours' hard drive we again turned our faces westward. The maneuver elicited a pungent Swahill epithet from Hassan, my second-in-command, who was now obliged to drive with one hand whilst shielding his eyes with the other, the sun-visor having dropped off some miles back along with the exhaust pipe and rear humper.

Trundling with joyous abandon over boulders, brooks, rare flowers and wild fruit-trees, we presently found the paved road. Our Land Rover—christened "Unuru" because, althougs she kept breaking down, we knew she'd get there sooner or later—was pooped. With a hairy side-slip across the last of the red-clay trail, she staggered onto the macadam, muffler disintegrating, losing compression at every new jounce, then gave her now-familiar little shimmy as if to say, "I'm

It had been a trek fraught with alarums and excursionsexcursions leading to isolated and neglected sites commemorating Stanley's impetuous bash through the bush, alarums emanating stanteys the soprano burps from the ponderous clock carried in lieu of a wristwatch by the king-sized and impetuous Hassan.

But what care we now for the difficulties we had encountered for the buffeted blistered bottoms; for the parched pow-wows with sub-Equatorial tribes of missionaries who served nothing stronger than water for lunch; for the Flying Bonnet Caper, the Great Plague of Honey, the harrowing escapes from the red army of ants and the savage dik-dik? No face is radiant but the dial of Hassan's wondrous timepiece.

We had made a short halt at noon, for rest and refreshment, in a Greasy Spoon at Mpands, a lovely village in the southwest, framed by blazing acacias and delicate, budding jacarintas. Despite appearances, the menu, chalked on a blackboard, indicated that this unpretentious little bistro off the beaten track was ripe for "discovery" by Naomi Barry. No less than 17 succulent entrées were listed, and I began from topside.

"I'll start with the chai," I began. "No chai today," said the proprietor, decorously picking his teeth with an 18-inch cleaver. "We got wall na nyama."

The United States formally protested the contemplated arrangements in notes delivered to the six members of the EEC and its Brussels executive authority last

While the governments have not yet drafted a reply, the chief of the EEC executive, Franco Maria Malfatti, and the commissioner in charge of trade relations, Ralf Dahrendorf, took exception to the American protest at a meeting here today of the EEC foreign ministers.

Mr. Dahrendorf said that he took a "dim view" of Washington's move, calling it "direct interference with autonomous policies" of the community-a reference to the timing of the protest three days before the EEC ministers were to deliberate again on the

The United States is worried about the loss of export markets, particularly farm products, if anything like the arrangements now being discussed go through.

In addition, France, Italy and the Netherlands want agreements to get rid of surplus grains, fruits, regetables and dairy products.

India Charges Pakistan Army With Shelling Border Village

NEW DELHI, Nov. 8 (AP) .-Renewed fighting has been reported near the Indian border town of Kamalpur, scene of heavy fighting last week between Indian and Pakistani troops.

Pakistani troops fired artillery into the northeastern border village in Tripura State last Friday, an Indian government spokesman charged today. He said the artillery barrage was followed by a small-arms attack.

Indian forces returned the fire, he said, and one Pakistani soldier was killed. Indian casualties were not reported.

ROME, Nov. 8 (AP).—Nobel through industrial amog, auto-eace laureate Norman E. Borlaug motive smoke and traffic jams ceace laureate Norman E. Borlaug today assailed "hysterical" environmentalists for trying to block the use of chemicals, such as DDT, which he said were critically vital to adequate food produc-

Mrs. Gandhi Says E. Bengal Must Gain Its Independence

said today that the only solution for East Bengal was in-dependence, and that it would come "sooner or later." Speaking on television following lunch today with President Georges Pompidou, Mrs. Gandhi said that independence would be "inevitable" if the people of East Bengal (East Pakistan) were allowed to decide their own fate. She said that she would be willing to meet with Pakistani President Mohammed Yahya Khan to discuss Indo-Pakistani problems, but that the Bengal situation was for the people of East Bengal themselves to resolve. "They certainly don't want anyone else to decide for them," she told a televised press conference. In answer to a question she said that the Bengalese of India would not be included in any independent state. In calling for self-determination in East Bengal, Mrs. Gandhi was repeating a theme she has emphasized on this world tour: that Pakistani officials must release Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, who headed the Bengali independence movement in East Pakistan this spring and is now under arrest.

Mrs. Gandhi, who arrived here last night from Washington, implied that Shelkh Mujibur's re-lease was a condition for any settlement to the crisis, and that India would not permit the return of the nearly 10 million East Bengal refugees now in India until his release.

On her European and American trips, Mrs. Gandhi seemed to have avoided any direct public reference to independence for East Bengal, but she did not avoid the reference in statements here. She made it clear that the Indian government isvored the breakup of Pakistan into what would become separate Pakistani (West Pakistan) and Bangla Desh (East Pakistan) states. In her huncheon toast at the Elysée Palace, Mra Gandhi refer-red to Pakistani action in East Bengal as "genocide," and said that it had been imposed solely because the East Bengalese had "voted democratically." Later, on television, she conceded that Sheikh Mujibur had been elected on a platform of autonomy, not separatism, but said he had been pushed into separatism by West

PARIS, Nov. 8 (IHT).-Indian Sheikh Mujibur tricked the people by running on a platform for autonomy, then espousing separatism after his election. The Pakistanis also claim that the only motivation behind present Indian policy is to bring the breakup of Pakistan. In an earlier television interview today, the Indian Prime Minister was asked if she approved of French writer André Malraux's offer to lead a regi-ment in fighting for Bangla Desh. She replied that Mr. Malraux's books had been an "inspiration" to her when she was a student as the voice of "oppressed hu-manity." She refused, however, to comment further on his offer, The French government has refused to take sides in the dispute, other than to insist on a political solution. In his toast today, however, Mr. Pompidou praised India, which, he said, like France, "is profoundly pacific." The French indicated last week that they have not renewed any arms shipments to Pakistan since the conflict broke out last March,

Minimal Damage The AEC said post-detonation examination of the Island has disclosed only minimal environmental damage.

The only casualties discovered thus far, the AEC said, were an injured sea otter, several dead birds, a destroyed nesting area and damage to a small freshwater lake.

The otter, the birds and the nesting area-of either bald cagles or peregrape falcons—were apparent victims of large rockalides touched off by the most powerful U.S. underground explo-sion—the equivalent of five million tons of TNT. The bald eagle and puregrane falcon are both officially designated "endangered spe-"-in danger of imminent extinctics.

(The Atomic Energy Commits sion said today that the earth has apparently started to collapse around "ground zero" on Amehitka as expected, United Press International reported.

[The sinking results from the cooling of gases sealed inside a huge underground chamber, blown out of the earth nearly a mile under the surface in Saturday's blast.

I"We have gotten some pretty strong indications on the geophone that something has happened out there," AEC public affairs officer Henry Vermillion said in Anchorage, Alaska,

[The AEC predicted before the explosion that the ground would collapse to form a dish-shaped crater about 40 to 50 feet deep and 2,000 feet in diameter.) Henry Vermillion, of the AEC public affairs office, stressed that the findings were incomplete. He said the search for more subtle environmental damage-which the AEC hopes it won't find-will continue for at least a year. Environmentalists, who fought losing battle against the test all the way to the Supreme Court, had contended there was a possibility the explosion would touch off natural disasters and inflict severe damage to the environment and wildlife.

The blast joited the area with force registered at 7 on the Bighter Scale for measuring seismic disturbances but it was felt no farther away than an island some 200 miles away. No scismic sen waves developed, and the AEC said scores of monitoring devices on the finger-shaped island showed no trace of radioactivity.

8 Held in Unusual Police Action

Spanish Angry at Rightists For Raid on Picasso Exhibit

By Richard Eder

MADRID, Nov. 8 .- The Spanish police have made eight arrests since members of an extreme rightist group smashed up an art gallery Friday night, destroying or stealing 24 Picasso engravings.

The raiders, clad in dark blue and calling themselves the "Anti-Markist Commando," broke glass frames, ripped the engravings, slashed them with razors, poured acid on them and strewed handbills accusing Picasso of financing Communism and homosexuality

The raid has aroused public opinion and most of the press reported it in detail, along with angry editorials. It has stirred up new demands for control of the handful of strong-arm rightist groups who have operated here in recent years, assaulting persons or institutions they suspect of leftism. Ten days ago, three bookfor exhibiting books on Picasso.

Soviet Poet Wins Prize Despite His Liberal Stance

MOSCOW, Nov. 8.-Alexander T. Tvardovsky, Soviet poet and former liberal editor of the liter-ary journal Novy Mir, was among those in the arts and sciences awarded the State Prize for 1971 Saturday.

Other winners in the arts included Aram Khatchaturian, the composer, and the makers of the feature film "At the Lake," which condemned the pollution of Lake Baikal, in Siberia.

In the sciences, prizes went to team of physicists led by Lev Artsimovich who constructed the "tokomak," a device used in thermonuclear research. It is designed to help control the power of the hydrogen bomb for peaceful purposes.

The State Prize, awarded on the eve of the anniversary of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution, was established a few years ago to supplement the more prestigious Lenin Prize.

The award to Mr. Tvardovsky for a recent volume of verse suggested that he remains in good standing with Soviet au-thorities despite his espousal of liberal causes during his editor-ship of Novy Mir. He resigned from the journal in February, 1970, in protest over a shake-up of the editorial board, which he contended undermined his authority and would change the character of the monthly literary magazine.

Romanian Leaders Pressing Drive for Ideological Purity By Dan Morgan

BELGRADE, Nor. 6 (WP) .-Romania's leadership has removed all doubts that it might have been only half serious last summer when it launched a program of ideological purification.

At a three-day meeting of the Central Committee of the Communist party, which ended Priday night, officials practiced selfcriticism, admitted ideological failures and called for the party to deepen its involvement in economic and cultural life.

Winding up the meeting, President Nicolae Ceausescu attacked corruption, which he said would meet with "severe measures," and asked for the party to intensify its ideological struggle. Earlier in the week a minister for construction materials and two Belgrade city officials were fired for "irregularities "

The Central Committee session was addressed by almost every major Romanian Communist Economic Controls Due It heralded, in the view of analysts here, a further strengthening of ideological training m the schools and much more political control over the economy. Romanian officials said the parliament might soon be asked to draft binding legislation to carry out the program, The ideological campaign was inaugurated in July by Mr. Ceausescu in a 17-point code, but the Communist leaders made it clear that the code had not been monerly heeded. In a seven - point resolution published yesterday, the party was summoned to a fight against all that is "old and backward," a phrase that bore a striking resemblance to language used at the Albanian party congress in progress in Tirana. Western analysis believe, how-ever, that Mr. Ceausescu's pro-gram probably derives from a number of factors other than ideniosical ones.

One is an apparent with of the Romanian leadership to prevent political laxity while the economy is being reformed and opened to the West. Another is the possible fear of losing total political control during the next phase of Romania's drift toward independence from the Soviet bloc. During Yugoslavia's withdrawal from the Soviet orbit in the late 1940s and early 1950s, a tight rein was kept over domestic developments.

Common Cause Wanes

A third reason advanced for program is the possibility that Mr. Ceausescu's leadership wishes to assert its authority while the alleged Soviet military threat, which had served to unite dissident progressive and conservative party groups, appears

VIENNA, Nov. 7 (AP).-Romania assured the Soviet Union today that it would live up to the stipulations of a treaty of friendship and mutual assistance that was signed after a long delay

The assurance was expressed in a telegram that Mr. Ceausescu and Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer sent to Moscow to mark the 54th anniversary of the Soviet October Revolution. The treaty was signed after two years of delays by the Romanians. Although some considered it similar to treaties the Soviet Union had signed with Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia, the Romanian party paper, Scintela, interpreted it as containing the right of each party to draw up policy independently.

Threnody for a Revolution

The ordered and stately observance of the anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution is far removed from the wild confusion it celebrates. It is as remote, in fact, as the military parade on the Champs-Elysées from the improvised valor that stormed the Bastille, or the annual cheerful exodus of Americans to the beaches and the countryside from that solemn pledge of lives, fortunes and sacred honor that marked the original Independence Day.

But the decorum of Nov. 7, 1971, in Moscow and the moderation of the speeches that accompanied it are, after all, closer to the events they commemorate than the French are to 1789 or the Americans to 1776, by more than a century. The Kremlin is still, officially, a Vatican of revolution. The wave of Marxist enthusiasm that washed out of Petrograd in 1917 not only was to engulf all of Russia, but to beat against the established order in Germany, Poland and Hungary, and to dash spray high in many places all around the world. And although the tide receded during the next 20 years, it was to return with new force when Hitler opened the floodgates in 1939.

Now there are governments more or less elong the Russian line from Europe's Elbe to the South China Sea, with variants in Africa and the Americas. In Stalin's day, his ukase was law over half the world, and the parades in Red Square, the oratory that went with them, were watched and harkened to by the rest of mankind with varying fears and hopes.

But revolutions, it has been pointed out, have a way of devouring their children. Maoism. Titoism, even Castroism, may owe much to the 1917 revolution, but they are deviant in terms of Muscovite orthodoxy; in fact, Stalin, for all his recrudescence in present-day Soviet thinking, would probably find the actions of Brezhnev and Kosygin very strange. For many, of all ideological brands, the celebration of the Bolshevik Revolution is a threnody rather than a

But the ways of history are devious. When Declaration of Independence was drafted, it was political treason and religious heresy to virtually all of the world-not because it declared Americans free of the British crown, but because it asserted that all men are equal, with unalienable rights to life. liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and that government rests upon the consent of the governed. These ideals are far from being fully honored in practice, even in the land of their first concrete expression. But when America is condemned today, it is almost always for falling short of realizing the hopes of 1776, not for asserting them.

It is so with the Soviet Union today. Very few will seriously contest the justice of the goals of Marxism—the effort to produce an order which provides economic equity. The methods, however, are disputed, often with arms and violence. Where Marxism has come into conflict with the "unalienable rights" expressed in the Declaration of Independence, where it has clashed with the policy of the Soviet Union as a nation, where it has failed to produce even the economic advantage it promises, where the state it has created refuses to wither and become stratified and monolithic, there is resistance. Lenin, in 1917, changed the world. But would he today recognize his own creation?

No severely detrimental effects on the environment have yet been reported as a result of the Cannikin underground nuclear test on Amchitka, and for that we Americans, our Canadian neighbors and the citizens of the world at large must be grateful

But the risks of disaster were there; and so was the characteristic arrogance of the Atomic Energy Commission and defense authorities in proceeding with the test without waiting briefly to determine whether the provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act had been faithfully carried out. At least three of the seven members of the Supreme Court thought there was enough doubt to warrant a delay for re-examination; but on the familiar if frequently specious ground of an overriding urgency in the interest of "national security" the ment said "no" and it won its point.

On both of these basic issues—the slighting of the requirements of the law as set forth by Congress and the suggestion that this particular test was so important to the security of the United States that all other considerations had to give way-we think the government was wrong.

The National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 sets forth very specific procedures for all governmental agencies to follow in describing the effect of their proposed actions on the environment. The AEC has been brought up short before for its cavalier attitude-similar to that of the Corps of Englneers-toward the "environmental impact" of its activities; and it is evident from the various judicial opinions in the Cannikin affair that there is good reason to believe that once again the law has been slighted. It is shocking that it has to be left to the initiative of private citizens, rather than of the administration itself, to see that the most powerful agencies of government rigorously observe the law.

In this case the government maintained, in effect, that the Cannikin test with all its risks was essential to the national security in developing nuclear missile defense. But here again there is evidence to suggest that the weapon and the uses for which it was designed have already become outmoded, superfluous or both.

Furthermore, the test in itself gave another unnecessary boost to the missile race when the real national security interest of the United States lies in the direction of restricting and limiting nuclear armaments, not in developing new ones-as many of the bestinformed members of the U.S. Senate rather belatedly pointed out. And to have proceeded with this nuclear explosion in total disdain of the protests from two of this country's closest and most important allies, Canada and Japan, can hardly be considered a contribution to the national security of the United States.

The only good thing to be said about the whole exercise—apart from the fact that it evidently did not wreak the damage that had been feared—is that so much of a storm has been aroused that it will probably be a long time before anything like this is attempted again. For this the country owes its thanks largely to the groups of scientists and environmentalists in the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility, the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth, and other organizations, who pushed the effort to halt Cannikin all the way to the highest court. Meanwhile, the nation can now resume its slow and painful advance along the difficult road toward nuclear dis-

The French-German Rift

Herr Willy Brandt has asked for a meeting with President Pompidou to discuss the monetary situation, and this will be no journey to Canossa-sur-Seine. If the two governments resolve their differences it will be because each has decided that it is in their own national interest, not because the other has imposed its will or for the sake of some higher European goal.

As is often the case, Herr Brandt has several purposes. The first of them, and the ostensible reason for calling the meeting a mere month before the regular twice-yearly Franco-German conference, is that the disagreement between the two countries has paralyzed Europe's reaction to President Nixon's economic policies, has sabotaged the plan for a European economic and monetary union, and has made the common agricultural policy unworkable. So the two statesmen will discuss the future of the EEC in its most basic definition.

LONDON-Is Dreyfus innocent or guilty? Several Paris newspapers and members of Parliament have received by post from Belgium a pamphlet entitled "Une Erreur Judiciaire," by Mr. Bernard Lazare, in which he says that fresh evidence has come to light which will justify the case being again brought into court. Figure dismisses the matter briefly in its "Echos" this morning saving any discussion in the Chamber would be sterile and dangerous.

In the meantime, those of us who have been critics of the war need to update our thinking. In particular, there is required a reassessment of the idea that Hanoi, which is equated with the good guy, will necessarily soon overwhelm Saigon, which is equated with the baddies.

A good starting point for analysis is the regime in Saigon. It has proved to be far more effective than even its most optimistic backers could have supposed when President Nguyen Van Thien first took over in 1967.

One impressive sign of its strength is the distribution of weapons. Something over 2 million carbines, rifles and automatic rifles have been handed out to people all over South Vietnam, Not just to soldiers under orders, either. Militiamen are armed, and watchmen, and the local equivaient of Boy Scouts.

But the distribution of weapons to the population is not a practice that comes easily to unpopular leaders of abhorrent regimes. The Greek colonels don't do it, nor Franco in Spain. Ngo Dinh Diem wouldn't hear of it even in his palmiest days as president of South Vietnam.

Sign of Strength

To me, at least, the willingness. of the Thieu regime to pass out weapons in the most remote parts of the country is an unmistakable sign of strength. It shows that the regime has crossed the first threshold of legitimacy. It has achieved general acceptance.

On top of general acceptance, there are specific areas of improvement. The economy has the first time in years, Administrative control over the population has also increased, as evidenced by the large turnout for President Thieu in the Oct, 3

Lastly the South Vietnamese Army seems to have become a more formidable force. In Laos. earlier this year, and then at Snoul in Cambodia, South Vietnamese units broke under fire from North Vietnamese troops and ran into ambushes that took a heavy toll.

At Krek in Cambodia last month the same kind of battle seemed to be developing. But on that occasion the South Vietnamese held. Air and artillery support was brought up The North. Vietnamese gave way and took

As that encounter suggests, the leaders of North Vietnam have not been immune to costly mistakes. They have rejected se offers to parley that could have been translated into something very close to their objectives. It not surprising that Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh, writing in the latest issue of the theoretical journal Hoc Tap, eems to call for more diplomatic initiatives from Hanoi.

The Amnesty International report parallels accounts of brutalprinted in the Sunday Times of London on Oct. 17 but goes into much greater detail.

2 Kinds of Prisoners Two categories of prisoners are discussed in the report: those arrested but released within 48 inners and those interned indef-In the first group the report draws on accounts by 12 men who said members of the British garrison, stationed in Northern Ireland to combat the terrorism on both sides, had beaten them immediately after their arrest, made them run across rough ground littered with broken glass and put them through an obstacle course.

These men "were subjected to calculated cruelties," Amnesty said, "imposed on them solely for the entertainment of their captors

The report said one of these men, evidently arrested by mis-take and "severely brutalized," was a 61-year-old Protestant living in a Catholic area. It said he was "savagely attacked in his own home by soldiers and again at an army camp."

Physical Crucities

But Amnesty said the internees had made more serious allegations-of "extremely brutal physical cruelties coupled with psy-chologically disorienting techniques to break the will." It based this part of the report on accounts by nine men.

Five of the men, the report said, "were beaten and forced to do exercises for many hours, including running around the camp and being forced to urinate while running in place."

These five and four others were then taken to another place, had heavy hoods put on their heads and were made to stand with their feet apart, their fingertips pressed on a wall as they leaned. The report said: They were not permitted to move for four or five hours, and when they did they were blud-geoned and forced to resume the torturous stance."

Dried Crusts The men had no food except "a Law Libraries few crusts of dried bread," the report said. It said their "torture" lasted as long as five days. It did not say whether army or Ulster police officers were in charge.

Amnesty said it has information that men arrested since the original detentions on and just after Aug. 8 have been subjected to "even more shocking experiences." It concluded that the Compton Commission's inquiry had not affected actual practices

One comment by Amnesty is sure to be particularly unwelcome to the British government. The report said that the prisoners' statements conjured up "a familiar picture of activities employed by an army of occupation against a hostile population."

Since Aug. 9, 882 people in Northern Ireland have been arrested as suspected terrorists. Figures released over the weekend showed that 476 have been releas-

Filipinos elected senate, provincial and municipal officials in the Philippines' fifth national and local elections. The separe race-in which one-third of the Senate sents were at stake-was the key contest and early returns showed the Liberals moving ahead on a wave of sympathy and protest votes,

Early trends from cities throughout the archipelago gave the Liberals a good chance to win six of the eight senate seats at stake, reversing their losses in the past three elections. In Manila, two-term Mayor Antonio J. Villegas was trailing Rep. Ramon D. Bagatsing, the united opposition candidate.

Mr. Villegas conceded defeat in a call to a radio station. The post of Manlla mayor is considered the second most important in the Philippines after the presidency. The Liberal comeback appeared based in part on their campaign slogan, "Remember Piaza Mi-randa," the Manila square where unidentified terrorists hurled fragmentation grenades at an op-position party rally, killing eight persons and wounding 96.

At stake in the election, in addition to the eight senale seats, were 66 provincial governorships and more than 15,000 provincial, city and municipal offices. The Commission on Elections estimated the voter turnout was 80-85 percent of the 11 million registered voters.

Meanwhile, the Commission on Election was investigating the crash Friday of a Philippine Air Force C-47 transport plane in which 400 fake ballot boxes were

Night Takeoffs

In the Summer LONDON, Nov. 8 (UPI) .-The British government today promised two summers of peaceful nights to residents around London's Heathrow Airport, It is banning nighttime takeoffs by jet airliners.

Michael Noble, minister for trade, told the House of Commons that Heathrow's jets will be forbidden to take off between 11:30 p.m. and 6 a.m. from April 1 to Oct. 31 for the next two years.

He said "the noise problem is at its worst" at Heathrow. London's largest airport and one of the busiest in the world. The night flights at London's Gatwick and Luton airports and at Manchester also will be limited, he said, and he will "consider more stringent limitation on summer night movements in subsequent years."

Publisher Punished For Agnew Coverage

ATHENS, Nov. 8 (AP) .- The Greek publisher of the Englishlanguage daily Athens News was convicted today of headlining the story on Vice-President Agnew's arrival in Athens last month with "Bombs, Recruited School Children Greet Agnew." The court said the story did not conform to the headline and sentenced him to seven months in prison and imposed a 10,000-drachma

Ioannis Horn contended that a paragraph pertaining to the headline had been dropped in error in the newspaper's composing room and that a correction was made in the next day's edition Mr Horn was released pending an appeal.

The conviction came under the press law, which stipulates that alarming newspaper headlines must be supported by the contents of the story beneath them.

The prosecutor contended that the paragraph referring to bombs and recruited school children was omitted on purpose in order to mislead his readers. Mr. Agnew's arrival in Athens on Oct. 16 for a week's visit was preceded by two explosions that damaged cars belonging to the U.S. Air Force. Mr. Horn, publisher of the small-circulation paper for the last 20 years, has been critical of the military-backed Athens gov-

We reach the outskirts of Niamtaga, and we hear drums beat. The people are flying into the woods; they desert their villages, for they take us to be Ruga-Ruga—the forest thieves of Mirambo, who, after conquering the Arabs of Unyanyembe, are coming to fight the Arabs of Ujiji. Even the King files from his village, and every man, woman and child, terror-stricken, follows him, We enter into it and quietly take possession, and my tent is set, Finally, the word is bruited

"No." we answer. "Well, how did you come to Ukangara?"

"By way of Ukonongo, Ukawendi, and Uhha."
"Oh—hi-le!" Then they laugh heartily at their fright and begin to make excuses. The King is introduced to me, and he says he had only gone to the woods in order to attack us again—he meant to have come back and killed us all, if we had been Ruga-Ruga. But we knew the poor King was terribly frightened, and would never have dared to return, had we been Ruga-Ruga—not he.

We are not, however, in a mood to quarrel with him about an idiomatic phrase peculiar to him, but rather take him by the hand and shake it well, and say we are so very glad to see him. A Leap Forward in Communications

By Naomi Barry

HONG KONG (IHT). - With China easing out of its isolation, the timing could not be more

Dr. Lin Yutang's eagerly awaited and monumental "Chinese-English Dictionary of Modern Usage" has reached its second proofreading stage. There are three more to go before publication next June. In a great leap forward and over the traditional communications barriers, Dr. Lin has taken the "inscruteble" out of Chinese by applying a modern linguistic treatment to Mandarin. of which the Pekinese dialect is the official language of Red

The six major previous English-Chinese lexicons were the work of British missionaries between 1819 and 1931. Since then an acute need has arisen around the world for a more comprehensive, scientific and up-to-date edition. The forthcoming 1500-page dictionary on Bible paper, under the purple and gold phoenix imprint of the Chinese University of Hong Kong. differs from its predecessors both in methodology and magnitude.

words are new-expressing such aspects of contemporary life as supersonic speed, petrochemicals. plastic surgery, beautician, lunar modules, containerization, miniskirt and hot pants. The new words are like building blocks.

Spoken Language

"The fascinating Chinese characters," Dr. Lin explains in his introduction, "distract the lexicographer's attention to the neglect of the spoken language as language. I have always maintained that the Chinese living tongue should be treated as one of the modern languages, whether it was written with Chinese characters or not. Forty or 50 years ago this was not possible. The literary or classical language was the established written medium. Its study was a scholar's occupation, par excellence. Language changes with the changes in men's thoughts." In olden days the Chinese never said "I love you." National reticence permitted only the less emotional "I like you." The new dictionary not only provides "I love you" but also includes "tsoh "to make love." It is a far

Thirty percent of its 75,000 cry from ancient Chinese which expressed polygamy with the colorful euphemism of "the rooster has five virtues."

The 76-year-old Dr. Lin, author of 30 books including the international bestsellers, "My Country and My People" and "The Importance of Living," studied linguistics at Harvard and took a doctorate in philology at the University of Leipzig. He taught linguistics at the National Peking University during the twenties and was among those who pioneered the first official effort to write Chinese in the Roman alphabet. He was compiling a Chinese dictionary when took over Shanghai in Japanese 1937 and 17 volumes of the manuscript were lost.

The forthcoming bilingual dictionary is panoramic in its scope and painstaking in its minutiae. A numerical index system of Dr. Lin's invention enables a student to locate the Chinese characters and radicals. To understand the key, however, it would help to have a degree in mathematics.

Each of the 8,000 Chinese characters is followed by the romanized version and the English translation. This is just the beginning. Whereas old Chinese was monosyllabic, today's Chinese is polysyllabic. Consequently every word containing a character in any possible combination is also listed in the same section and given a complete case history. It is identified as a noun, adverb, adjective, etc., for it is Dr. Lin's desire to show, once and for all, that the Chinese language has a grammar. Examples are given of the word's use in idiomatic sentences. As a further guidepost, initials indicate whether it is ancient Chinese, middle Chinese or dialect plus the nuances situating it as satirical, facetious, courteous, slang, contemptuous, rulgar. abusive.

The gigantic enterprise which Dr. Lin describes as "a stitch-bystitch work" presents a simplified pronunciation of the four tones which are the integral parts of every Chinese syllable. The first tone is undistinguished and straight forward. For the second tone which demands a rise, an R is added to the vowel. The third tone—a fall and then a rise—is shown by a double vowel. The fourth tone, a fall, is indicated by an H after the vowel, (Examples: a. an, ang; ar, arn, arng; aa, aan, aang; ah, ahn, ahng.)

Hyphenation in romanized words is reduced to a minimum because Dr. Lin feels that tightly bound words should be spelled together to increase their visual recognition. He cites Shanghai rather than Shang-Hai, Taipei rather than Tai-Pel. Piccadilly rather than Pic-Ca-Dil-Ly. Conceptually, the writing of Chinese words in unconnected separate syllables inflicts untold loss in time and energy on the learner, if not a gratuitous insult on his intelligence."

Team of Eight

Processing the voluminous manuscript are eight bright bilingual youngsters from Hong Kong's Chinese University under the paternal direction of Dr. Francis Pan, who 50 years ago was a student of Dr. Lin's in Peking. Since March, the team has questioned meanings and shadings, checked translations with all existing dictionaries including Catholic and Protestant glossaries, and noted omissions, With the traditional Chinese deference of pupil to teacher, all suggestions were politely submitted to Dr. Lin for approval.

For months they walked around with notebooks jotting down words heard on the street; observed on posters: picked up from newspapers, radio, movies, television, and conversation. Dr. Lin happily agreed to all but three percent of the team's suggestions and thus added several thousand words to the dictionary. No comprehensive dictionary can be the work of a single man nor is any dictionary ever complete.

Dr. Pan, a youthful-looking man who can walk faster than any of his young squad, is a graduate of Dartmouth and speaks English, French, German, Mandarin, the Shanghal dialect and "bad Cantonese." He has reached the conclusion that "English and Chinese are the most versatile and the most rich in expressions of human relations and human emotions. Also in purple passages. Curiously enough, we share hundreds of similar expressions like-'Off one's head,' 'stick your neck out, 'jump for jey'."

Dictionary Project is a top secret operation boused on the 12th floor of a Kowloon office building. Before coming to work, every member of the staff had to sign 12-point security code, including the promise not "to indulge in gossip."

Japanese Role

"There is a lot of intellectualdishonesty," said Dr. Pan, alluding to the book piracy rampant in the Orient. The dictionary is being printed in Tokyo, despite nigher costs, because of Japanese reliability. "We could have done it 30 percent cheaper in Hong Kong but with 300 percent more headache," said Dr. Pan. "The Japanese promised Dr. Lin all new type faces for the Chinese characters and we know they will live up to their commitment. Besides Japan is the only country where the dictionary is an institution. When you graduate from elementary school, high school, or university, your gift is always a dictionary. So we were able to choose from seven major specialized printers."

Dr. Pan is not sure whether Mainland China will accept the dictionary since it was cone abroad. Political epithets have heen carefully avoided. Imperialist is there but not imperialist dog. Communist is included but not Communist bandit.

One important point has still not been resolved. Should there be a section on those simplified characters which have been adopted in Mainland China?

"If we do," said Dr. Pan, "Taiwan may reject the dictionary. We are thinking of an insert section which would be removable."

100 Years Later in Bologna

By William Weaver

Teatro Comunale of Bologna has been celebrating an important anniversary: the centenary of the first performance of a Wagner opera in Italy. This momentous event took place, in fact, at the Comunale on Nov. 1, 1871, and the opera was "Lohengrin." A hundred years later, the same theater is again presenting "Lohengrin," and-thanks to a charming exhibition of old posters, photographs, and reviews -it is possible to recapture some of the excitement of that remote occasion.

To put on a Wagner opera in those days was not only an act of musical courage, it was also politically brave. Verdi was the national hero, and his German rival was considered by many a kind of demoniacal enemy, an antichrist. When some citizens of Parma, the capital of Verdian fanaticism, went in 1871 to Bologna to "Lohengrin," a group of their fellow Parmigiani waited at the railroad station and, on their return, gave them a sound beating.

But that "Lohengrin" of a century ago was a great success and the thin end of a wedge that rapidly widened. By 1900, Wagner was generally accepted in Italian theaters, and now his operas are part of the standard repertory. The operas now are usually given in the original, so the Comunale's decision to give this centennial revival in Italian was anachronistic, but understandable. The translation sounds quaint, but is acceptable; for the most part, it was clearly enunciated in performance.

Director Sandro Sequi and his designer Maria Antonietta Gambaro, however, decided to go against tradition. The sets were semi-abstract, and, it must be said, undistinguished. The banks of the Scheldt River in the first and last scenes became a dreary tunnel of gray gauze; the swan seemed to be made out of wire coat hangers; and the chorus was hampered by an array of platforms and shallow steps. Sequi's announced intention was to "cleanse" the opera of excessive frills, but he added nothing in their place. Movements were few and conventional. Most of the time, the singers were apparently left to their own devices.

It was not a great cast (though great singers, including Pertile, Gigli and the young Tebaldi, have performed the opera in Bologna in this century). Franco Tagliavini looked heroic in the title role.

Music in Italy: 'Lohengrin'

ROLOGNA, Italy (IHT).—The and his voice, though not big enough, sounded fine in the flat-tering hall. Most of the singers were just plain loud, and baritone Gian Giacomo Guelfi blustered and bawled outrageously. Rita Orlandi Malaspina had some appealing moments as Elsa, and Danica Martilovic was an aggressive, but often incomprehensible Orturda, hampered by a headdress that made her resemble the Red Queen. The chorus was in excellent form, and the orchestra played well, though Francesco Molinari Pradelli's tempos were > irresolute. Most of all this "Lobengrin" was important because it filustrated the evolution of Italian operatic taste. Bologna's Comunale was not a provincial house in 1871, and it is not one now: The production was wrong because it underestimated the sophistication of the audience.

Disputed Work By El Greco Goes to the Met

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (NYT).-A federal judge has ruled that the Metropolitan Museum of Art could exhibit an El Greco painting that has been stored for months in an ammunition vault of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in New York.

Federal authorities have been holding the painting pending the outcome of a legal dispute over its ownership. It was stolen from a Madrid mansion during the Spanish Civil War and was recovered here by the FBI last

The painting, slightly over 22 inches by 43 inches in size, is El Greco's final sketch for "The Immaculate Conception," a 10-foothigh altar piece owned by a museum in Toledo, Spain. The Spanish government termed the recovered canvas "a national treasure."

Acting on a request by United States attorney Whitney North Seymour jr. in federal court here, Judge Charles L. Brieant jr. ruled that the painting could be transferred temporarily to the Metropolitan Museum for restoration and display.

The ownership is being contested in court by a Manhattan jeweler, who turned it over to the FBI, and representatives of the Spanish family that owned it in Madrid. The painting, more than 350 years old. has not been publicly displayed since 1936.

Textile Import In U.S. Rose Record 61%

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP-DJ).-CS, textile imports totaled an unprecedented 609 million square yards in September, 61 percent above year-carlier levels, 57 percent of which came from Japan, Hong Kong, Taiwan and South Korea, the Commerce Department reported over the week-

Textile imports in the first nine months of this year, the agency said, rose 28 percent to $1,843 billien from about $1.441 billion a year earlier.

Although Japan had announced that a system of voluntary textile export restraints took effect last July 1, a U.S. industry spokesman said there was nothing in the U.S. government figures to show that Japan had actually slowed its exports of textiles. The administration recently concluded another understanding with Japan, which provides for Japanese export restrictions beginning Oct, 1, 1971; under a formal agreement that replaces the earlier voluntary arrangements. Terms Outlined

In quantity terms, the Com-merce Department said, imports of all textile products from Japan totaled nearly 1,277.8 million square yards in the first nine months of this year compared with 876.1 million in the comparable period of last year. The recently completed agreements between the United States and Far East countries will limit textile imports from Japan to about 988 million square yards in the year ending Oct. 1, U.S. officials have advised the textile industry. Similar limits for other Far East countries are 238 million square yards for Hong Kong, 451 million for Taiwan and 329 million for South Korea. All of these include the "growth factor" for some increases in textile exports from these countries over the base period, generally the 12 months ending last April 1, U.S. officials said.

Auto Makers In U.S. See No Boom Yet February next year, other indus-try officials noted that there would have to be some cizcable compromises made for this to

2-Month Sales Gain Fails to Allay Worries

DETROIT, Nov. 8 (AP-DJ) .--Despite record spics in September and October, auto makers here are worried about sales, and they insist an auto boom is not under

Auto makers figure that the freeze stimulation to sales will be replaced with the sales deterrent of higher prices once Phase 1 of President Nixon's economic program ends and auto makers are allowed to raise prices.

General Motors found that about 35 percent of its buyers, a higher percentage than normal, are teking cars right out of dealers' inventories because they do not want to gamble on orders that might be delivered after the freezo at higher prices. Another reason sales may lose momentum is that Phase 2 price increases on the subcompact Pintos, Vegas and Gremlins would crase some of the advantage they recently gained because of import price increases. And settlement of dock sirikes eventually will solve foreign dealers' inventory shortages.

Phase 2 Uncertainties

Phase 2 also poses uncertainties. Any long-term controls on wages may hurt consumer confi-dence, auto men fear. While ac-tual repeal of the 7 percent federal excise tax may soften the impact of auto price increases under Phase 2, the repeal is like-ly to depress used-car prices, cutting the trade-in allowance dealers give and eliminating any cash savings for the new-car

Industry suspicion about prospects for the months ahead explains why its reaction to the current boom is defensive, rather than expansive. Auto makers, in fact, are doing none of the things they normally do at this time of year, or when sales are booming. Instead of building inventories of new cars in the hands of their dealers, the normal fourth-quar-ter pattern, the industry is letting inventories run down to unload unusually high stocks of left-over "old" model cars. Also, auto makers want to see what Phase 2 and the excise tax repeal will do to new-car sales.

Output Is Normal

Production planners have repeatedly reviewed their schedules In a speech to the Chamber of since sales started to rise in late August. For instance, GM has announced a gradual 2 percent increase in its production rate. industrial enterprises with which But so far additions to schedules for the fourth quarter have been minor. Output is still expected All companies polled reported sharply declining profits, sharply to total 2.2 million autos, or less, which is in line with the schedule set before the President's new economic plan was announced. There is hardly any company This would be far below the 2.4 the country that isn't revising million-to-2.6 million levels of recent years when car sales were adding that this may lead to a

The industry's cautious reaction to its own sales gains is under-mining at least one aim of the Nixon plan-more jobs. Although GM has announced plans to recall or hire 1,000 workers, unemployment is still high in many cities where the auto makers and their suppliers have factories, The hiring situation is not likely to turn around soon, either. "What we need is a good strong sustained demand," says a labor official at one auto company. "The short-run swings have to be covered by overtime because to change the line speed and create new jobs means fundamental changes in assembly line assign-

WHAT HENTZ CAN DO FOR YOU IN THE U.S., HENTZ CAN DO FOR YOU IN EUROPE.

We're not newcomers to Europe. We've been here for 44 years. In fact, before most brokerage houses were here. So we know our way around.

We can offer you complete stock and commodity brokerage services in Europe: our own international communications network, underwriting expertise, international investment management, our own put and call department, and an excellent research facility.

In short, we can offer you in Europe everything you can get from Hentz in America.

H.Hentz & Co.

PACKAGE FOR MRS. BUMSTEAD --HREE HUNDRED DOLLARS, COLLECT

BRIDGE.

By Alan Truscott

After the artificial strong opening of one club, North and South were able to bid naturally. At the three level, they fixed spades as the trump suit. A series of cue-bids followed, and the partnership settled in six spades when it became clear that a finesse in hearts would be needed to make a grand slam. As the cards lie, seven spades can be made, since both major suits break evenly and West has the heart king. However, North made only 12 tricks—by playing correctly. The opening lead of a club was won in dummy with the king. A trump was led to the queen, and the declarer led a heart. Dummy's queen was successfully finessed, and the ace was cash-ed. A third round of hearts was led, reaching this position after the declarer ruffed with Trumps could have been drawn in two rounds to bring in all the tricks, but South led a trump and finested the nine. This failed when East produced the jack. South had no trouble making the remaining tricks to score the The trump finesse would have paid off if West had held all the missing tramps. South would have continued leading hearts from dummy, and West would have made one trump trick but no more.

For Verhaeren, Paul Verlaine "was the man who made the modern school of poetry possible."

Since then, Verlaine's reputa-tion has greatly deteriorated: tastes and literary prejudices change; he has suffered from a bad press; and, by any standards, much of his output is indeed mediocre. If today we are not inclined to view him as a "great" poet—on a par with his master, Baudelaire, his lover Rimbaud. or his lifelong friend Mallarme still only a stubborn bias can dismiss him as inconsequential. His best texts are semetimes superb; his technical innovations helped determine the evolution of poetry; he was instrumental; in establishing the literary reputation of Rimbaud. As to his life and legend—its fascination is perhaps unsurpassed in literary history.

And this the fascination, the drams, the tumult and paradox, the pathos—is where Joanna Richardson's book excels: a sharp, chronological narrative January 1898, the lowlline melds biographical facts, in which he had died anecdotes, evocations of social and literary milieux, and abun-dant quotations from richly diverse contemporary accounts. The resulting portrait is terrifying and unforgettable. As a fine, tautly written story, the book should entertain both layman and student; yet it hardly seems to be "a full-scale critical biography," as claimed by the Oxford-trained author, a colleague of the late Enid Starkie, to whom the book is dedicated. With some exceptions, the poetry is treated pri-marily as material to illustrate the life. Where it does occur, literary commentary is mostly vague, impressionistic and prescriptive. Pro Tennis Group Reportedly Lowers Demands for 'Big 3'

LONDON, Nov. 8 (UPI).-The WCT would play, or how much prospects of the world's leading it would cost if his men were to professionals participating at be allowed into our (ILTF: tour-Wimbledon, Forest Hills and naments. The whole argument Paris next year rose today as Lamar Hunt may be villing to compromise in his demands which helped spark a tennis war. In an interview with Hunt, who owns the World Championship Tennis professional group, the magazine Tennis World said he is willing to allow his players to appear at the three major tournaments on a "cost only"

Hunt says this would amount to $10,992 for each championship—a 75 percent reduction on the $48,000 he wanted for Wimbledon last July, Last July, the International Lawn Tennis Federation announctournaments recognized by the ILTF because of a disagreement over financial guarantees. Derek Hardwick, Britain's chief ILTF negotiator, said tonight: "The Big Three (costs only) ligures given us at Wimbledon were in the region of $20,000 to $24,000 per week. These figures were repeatedly confirmed and at no time would Mr. Hunt be moved from these, although many hours were spent These new figures certainly have not been communi-cated to my association or the "This shift in position has come completely out of the blue. If

Mr. Hunt feels he has new proposals to make on these lines

then why has he not written to tell us about them? "Personally, I have always be-lieved WCT would be prepared to play Wimbledon for nothing if they had the chance. Now ha (Hunt) is throwing in this reduction in price to cover the other two tournaments as well.

"But he does not say where else NBA Results

A Billion Dollars

WASHINGTON.—It had to come come sooner or later. The unthinkable has become thinkable. The U.S. Navy is asking for ONE BILLION DOLLARS to build ONE aircrast carrier.

No one thought it would happen for five years, but when the word got out there was jubilation in all the military services at the Pentagon. An Army gen-eral said, "I thought never the Navy would have the guts to Buchwald ask for it. but now that they've broken the sound barrier, we're all free to ask for a billion dollars for our favorite weapon. "Then you're not mad at the Navy for asking for that kind of money for an aircraft carrier?"

I asked. "Why should we be mad?" the general answered. "We've been piddling around with $100 mdlion here, $100 million there, on a new piece of hardware when everyone knows you really can't get a bang for a buck for less then $1 billion. "But we didn't know how Congress would react until the Navy asked for the billion for a carrier. It didn't faze them in the least, so now if the Navy can get a billion for an aircraft carrier, we can get a billion for something we've wanted to build

'Appalling' Is Rating of Two U.K. Restaurants

for some time."

LONDON, Nov. 8 (Reuters).-A hotel and restaurant guidebook published today has introduced a new rating in its section on motorway catering: "appalling." It is awarded to a roadside restaurant west of London "nothing commendable, save yoghurt", and to another in the Midlands ("tasteless beans, dreadful cakes, indescribable tea.". Of the rest of the British roadside restaurants sampled by the Egon Ronay-Dunlop Guide, nine are found "acceptable," three "poor," and two "good."

"It's a giant tank," he said. "and it takes up eight football fields. It's the greatest advance in military hardware since the invention of the Gatling gun." "A billion dollars for one tank? "It's not just a tank, you fool," the general said. "Look at this model. The top of the tank is flat so bombers can take off and land on it. On the sides you have missiles and in the front and rear you have four 16-inch

"But even with all those things it doesn't seem as if it would cost a billion dollars."

"Aha, that's the surprise," he chuckled. "You see this here on the bottom?"

"It looks like a keel." "Exactly. This is a floating nuclear airborne tank, something the U.S. Army cannot do without."

"But it looks just like an aircraft carrier," I said. The general took the model away angrily. "Eow can it look like an aircraft carrier?" he said.

"It's painted brown!" The Air Force was also celebrating the Navy's billiondollar breakthrough. An Air Force colonel in research and development showed me the latest plane the Air Force wants to

"This is the greatest bomber ever designed by man," he said. "It flies at 60,000 feet, floats on water, and can cut its way through a jungle so silently that not even birds can hear it."

"But it looks like a tank," I "How can it be a tank?" he grunbled. "It says "U.S. Air Force' on the side." Although there was excitement in the Army and Air Force wings of the Pentagon, it was nothing comparable to what was going on over at the Navy Department. Officers were handing out cigars and you could feel the excitement in the air.

While I was talking to one admiral, another admiral came down the hall and my admiral rushed up to him saying. "Zeke, for gosh sakes, I haven't seen you in four years. You look like a billion dollars."

The other admiral laughed. "You look like a billion dollars Julius Caesar lumped together virtually all the tribes known to exist in Central Europe in his day as 'Germans' as a political power gambit.

The Germans Aren't 'Germans'—But Celts

By David Binder

BONN (NYT) .- The Teutoni and the Germani, long described Bas being among the original German tribes, were almost certainly Celtic instead of Germanic, according to the latest archaeological evidence.

This is the myth-breaking conclusion of Rolf Hachmann, one of West Germany's leading archaeologists, in his new book, "Die Germanen," issued by the Nagel Publishing House.

If his thesis gains acceptance the convention of regarding contemporary Germans as inheritors of "Teutonic" arrogance and a sense of racial superiority long upheld here and abroad in schoolbooks and lexicons may eventually disappear.

Dr. Hachmann, a 53-year-old professor at the University of Saarbnicken, submits that the Teutons were a Celtic tribe stemming from Helvetia, or present-day Switzerland.

Greek Scholar

This was also the conviction of the Greek scholar Poseidonios, who described the Teutons and their allies, the Cimbri, as Celts in the 1st century BC. The man who revised this identification was Julius Caesar, who called the Teutons "Germans." This concept remained dominant in historic and even linguistic thinking for the next 2,000 years.

Dr. Hachmann asserts that the Romans also erred in describing the north Gaul tribe centered around present-day Reims and called "Germani" as members of a larger "Germanic" grouping. "They were more Celtic than Germanic," he said. "Nor did they speak a Germanic language."

Another tribe, inhabiting the eastern bank of the middle Rhine and also called "Germani" by the Romans probably were Germanic, he added.

Caesar's idea of lumping together virtually all the tribes known to exist in Central Europe in his day as "Germans" was most probably one of his "power politics gambits" aimed at increasing his influence in Rome against the ruling triumvirate, of St. Hippolytus.

In his book he writes: "In this sense the Germans were to a certain degree almost his own political invention."

Caesar's depiction of the Germanic tribes as "troublemakers" for Roman-occupied Gaul also served his political purposes and remained a hardy perennial of historical writing down through the ages, he remarked, Drawing on the latest archaeological findings across the European continent, Dr. Hachmann also demolished other longstanding beliefs about the origins of the German people.

On the basis of diggings at grave sites and villages of the early European tribes he concludes that a region east of the lower Rhine and bounded in the north by the Lippe River and in the east by the Leine River belonged to the Celtic "La Tene" culture rather than to the Germanic culture.

The Germanic tribes were centered rather in Eastern Europe in such areas as Galicia, Bohemia, Moravia, West Slovakia and a broad strip reaching eastward through the present-day Romanian province of Moldavia to the Black Sea.

"It was no high culture," Dr. Hachmann writes, noting that the Germanic tribes were still using wooden lances with firehardened points when other Europeans already had iron lanceheads and that the early Germans had only vessels of wood when others already manufactured metal pots. German "handicraft abilities were in part remarkably limited," he wrote,

One characteristic remains unchanged in his estimate of the Germans: He noted that beer drinking was "a cult of impor-

Dr. Hachmann's bold opening sentence, "Who were the Germans?" and further scarp remarks such as "The Germans are a problem," drew a friendly and amused response among newspaper reviewers.

So far no protest has been raised by German nationalists, according to the publishers. The lavishly illustrated book, one of a series of 36 popular archaeological studies, was published in an edition of 22,000 in German, English and French and is in 1952 when Miss Merman was in "Call Me Madam," a musical based on Mrs. Mesta's life as a Washington hostess and former envoy to Belgium.
